A Pre-Ack loan is a refund advance loan approved during the period before the IRS has issued its first acknowledgement of the tax season. The IRS issues its first acknowledgement of the tax season during the controlled launch phase of electronic filing, aka HUB Testing, the time period when the IRS tests the electronic filing system by receiving a limited number of tax returns in advance of the official opening of e-file.

To offer Pre-Ack loans, an ERO must first be approved by a bank to use its products to facilitate refund transfers, then be separately approved to offer refund advance loans, then be further approved to offer Pre-Ack refund advance loans.

What makes a refund advance loan a Pre-Ack loan is that it is explicitly marked as a pre-ack loan. An ERO should clarify with the bank if a refund advance loan application during the Pre-Ack period is presumptively a Pre-Ack loan, or if the taxpayer has the option of choosing between Pre-Ack or in-season (sometimes called "Post-Ack"). If the bank approves the taxpayer's refund advance application, and the advance is marked as Pre-Ack, the loan will be issued before the return has been accepted by the IRS. If the advance is not marked as Pre-Ack, the loan will be issued after the IRS accepts the return.

WHY USE PRINT MEDIA ALONG WITH YOUR SOCIAL MEDIA MARKETING...

CALL OR EMAIL TODAY TO RESERVE YOUR SPACE FOR NEXT WEEK'S EDITION!

Print Advertising reinforces your social media, website, radio and television advertising and our readers will keep it for future reference.

It also reaches customers who are without internet access or don't use social media.

Print Media & Advertising Advantages

Your business can pursue a number of avenues when it comes to promoting your products and services. Advertising can take the form of television or radio spots, placing billboards in high-traffic areas or using the Internet. You can also make use of print advertising, which offers its own set of advantages over other forms of media.

Unlimited Exposure

Print media such as newspapers and magazines allow for unlimited exposure. Unlike television or radio where advertising time is scheduled, prospects have potential exposure to print ads at virtually any time. A newspaper or magazine left on a coffee table can be viewed repeatedly and at the reader's discretion. The reader also has the opportunity to study the ad at his leisure and isn't limited to 30 or 60 seconds.

Non-Intrusive

Print ads are less intrusive than other forms of media. Radio and television ads often interrupt programming which can sometimes be an annoyance. With print media, the prospect has greater control as to when she views the ads, which eliminates interruptions.

Target Marketing

Certain forms of print media allow for a high level of target marketing. Magazines, for example, tend to be highly specialized, so ads can be developed to appeal to a specific readership. For example, companies that manufacture upscale clothing for men can target their ads to publications that appeal to professional males. A manufacturer of fishing gear can place ads in hunting and fishing publications.

Loyal Readership

Print media sources tend to have longstanding, loyal readership. People may read their copy more than once and may keep them for long periods of time. This frequent readership helps reinforce the advertiser's message or even develops an ongoing campaign that may cover multiple issues. Advertising in publications that have been around for many years can also lend credibility to the advertiser.

Position Flexibility

Advertisers usually have a choice as to where they place their ad in the publication. If the budget allows, the advertiser may choose the location that offers the highest visibility, such as the front cover or above the fold. Newspapers also offer the flexibility to choose the desired ad size, such as a full page or quarter-page.
